FORT MASON CENTER

November 1985

CELEBRATION OF PEACE, PATRIOTISM AND NOSTALGIA

"40 YEARS LATER"

Fort Mason Center commemorates its history and honors the veterans of World War II and the Korean conflict with "40 Years Later," an event celebrating peace, patriotism and nostalgia. The USO, the Red Cross, the Armed Services, the National Park Service and veterans from all over the Bay Area join in the re-creation of that historic era, this Veterans' Day weekend, November 9, 10 and 11, from 11am to 6pm daily in Pier 3.

The festivities begin at 10:45am in the Presidio, with the official regional Veterans' Day Parade, proceeding from the west end of Marina Boulevard, along the Marina, to the gate of Fort Mason Center. There, opening ceremonies will include a welcome by LTG Robert Arter, Commanding General, Sixth United States Army, and the formal dedication of Fort Mason Center as a National Historic Landmark by the Department of the Interior.

The USO's Stage Door Canteen is one of the highlights of the event, with continuous entertainment of the era. Actor David Soul ("Starsky & Hutch") headlines the show, complete with singers, dancers, and comedians recalling the performances of the 40's and 50's. Military bands play patriotic and Big Band music. Dancing is open to the public, the more authentic in dress and dance style, the better. Other participants include local TV notables Fred La Cosse ("AM San Francisco"), Ruby Peterson ("Romper Room"), Ann Fraser ("People are Talking") and Jan Rasmussen ("TGI4"). And, just as was done at the canteens of the 40's, any celebrities passing through town during the event are invited to perform. General Douglas MacArthur is also expected to put in an appearance in the person of historian and actor Wy Spalding, a retired colonel and former drama teacher. Completing the atmosphere are large photo blow-ups of the original 1945 Stage Door Canteen and contemporary USO Centers today.

You can also visit a re-created Red Cross office complete with telex machine, and be served free coffee and donuts from period vehicles—the much-loved "woodies"—by Grey Ladies; walk though a MASH unit, or enter the Mess Hall to sample today's version of yesterday's food; see films of the 40's and 50's, including propaganda, military training, and Hollywood entertainment; take a free tour of the National Liberty Ship Memorial SS Jeremiah O'Brien and other historic Navy and Coast Guard vessels; see restored vintage vehicles from the Center for Military History, California State National Reserve; take a historic tour of the area provided by the National Park Service; visit exhibits from the Presidio Army Museum, Go for Broke, Inc., the Treasure Island Naval Museum, the National Park Service, the Oakland Army Base MTMC , the US Army Corps of Engineers Bay Model Visitor Center, and a display of World War II and Korean conflict models from the International Plastic Modelers Society; and hear speakers reminisce about victory gardens and food from the war years, the role of women in the war effort, and the first OSS unit.

"40 Years Later" is a tribute to the 1½ million people for whom Fort Mason was a port of embarkation. For a few hours, you can experience the Fort as it was then, imagine troops embarking from the catwalks in Pier 3, see again the footlockers and field tables, camouflage and cargo nets, or just gaze at the Golden Gate as they saw it then, about to leave for war. Fort Mason now offers an example of the complete transformation of a military facility to cooperative community use. The warehouses and piers are part of a unique urban park, a model for communities around the United States, the first of its kind.

So put on some fancy clothes (they're coming around again anyway), come cheer the bands, wave a flag, take a tour, sing old songs, meet old friends, dance, play, reminisce—and celebrate the Fort Mason of today, the home of happy and peaceful pursuits.

Admission is $2.00; under 16 admitted free. For further information, call 441-5080.

FMC THEATER UPDATE

Magic Theatre. Sam Shepard's 1979 Pulitzer Prize winning Buried Child has returned to open the 1985-86 season at the Magic Theatre. An Illinois farm is the setting for this disquieting examination of an American Gothic family in which physical and emotional handicaps seem to thrive. Buried Child had its world premiere at the Magic seven years ago. Andrew Doe directs the current production, which runs through November 24.

Scar, the story of a traumatized Vietnam veteran, will be the Magic's second attraction. Written and directed by Murray Mednick, Scar asks such questions as who pays the bill for social injustice. It runs from November 20 to December 22. Due early next year are Theodore Shank's Wild Indian, about the complexities and contradictions of acculturation, and Paul D'Andrea's Bully, about an explosive altercation among midwestern farmers. The Magic Theatre box office can be reached by calling 441-8822.

11/1-24 Buried Child.

The Asian American Theater Company has begun its 12th season, and second at Fort Mason, with the West Coast premiere of State Without Grace, a drama about a contemporary Philippine family. It runs through November 24 and will be followed by a series of four other plays, the season ending in June 1986. The AATC's program of working with emerging Asian American playwrights and actors not only encourages the visions and development of those artists, but hopefully promotes interethnic understanding as well. The AATC has also expanded its agenda to include community outreach projects and training programs in acting and writing. For tickets and information, call 776-8999.

Young Performers Theatre, the theater group that utilizes the talents of both children and professional adult actors, closes its 1985 season with Tale of the Toy Soldier. The YPT performs theater pieces that are especially attractive to younger audiences, but can be enjoyed and appreciated by all ages and family members. Tale of the Toy Soldier, by San Rafael's Anthony Lazzarini, is the product of a nationwide playwrighting contest that was held earlier this year. Over 100 manuscripts were submitted to YPT, with a panel of five Bay Area theater personalities making the final selection. The play runs on Saturdays and Sundays from December 6 to December 22. A full slate of plays for the 1986 season is currently being planned. For further details, phone 346-5550.

The San Francisco School of Dramatic Arts was the recent recipient of a $30,000 general operating grant from the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation. The Foundation cited as a significant cultural contribution the School's ongoing commitment to developing and keeping local talent in the Bay Area. The SFSDA offers a varied and substantial curriculum for those pursuing careers as actors, directors, and playwrights. All classes are taught by working professionals, a majority of whom have associations with major Bay Area theaters. Class schedules for the term beginning in January are available now. You may contact the School at 885-2766 for more information or a brochure.

Performing Arts Workshop. Hearty congratulations are in order for the Performing Arts Workshop which just celebrated its 20th anniversary at the end of October. PAW was founded on the premise of reaching those people who do not have adequate means or access to established cultural resources. For 20 years, they have utilized outreach programs to teach drama and creative movement skills to children, adults, and seniors of all races and socio-economic backgrounds. For more information about PAW, call 673-2634.
